A social gathering, which was a birthday dinner, honoring Mrs. John C. Dunn, was held at their home on Sunday, August 16. Great feasting was enjoyed by all from baskets filled by children, and that which mother also cooked. In the late afternoon watermelon feasting was a feature. Those enjoying the day were Mr. and Mrs. Chester, from Farmington; Mrs. Magness, and son, Glander, of Murray; sister of Mrs. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Lyles, and family, of Brewster; Mr. and Mrs. Hallett Dunn, and family of Brewster; Mrs. Gendola Dunn Padgett, and children, of Hardin, also Master D. COLLEGIANS TO PLAY IN PADUCAH SUNDAY

The argument as to the independent baseball championship of Western Kentucky will be resumed at Paducah Sunday with the Murray Collegians playing a return engagement with the Paducah Blue Sox at Hook Park.

Murray has the edge by virtue of a 10-7 victory Sunday, August 9. If Paducah wins Sunday it will be a deadlock as Murray cannot get another engagement there this year.

Several of the Murray players will be out on account of commencement at the college but Manager Ty Holland has promised additional strength that will bring the team to par or above.

Yes, as I walk through the Shadow of Slavery I will fear great evil; for thou art against me; thy rod and thy staff dis-

GRIDDERS EXPECT GOOD RECORD IN S. I. A. A. SEASON

Eight Lettermen Will Be Lost Through Graduation at Murray

FRESHMEN PROVIDE STRONG MATERIAL

Murray State College is looking forward to its first year in S. I. A. A. football this fall as it is believed Coach Cuthlin will have a team on par with the other teams of the conference.

Although Coach Cuthlin and Morgan will miss eight stalwart football players whose faces are familiar to the gridiron fans of West Kentucky, they will recruit more than enough material from Coach Miller's 1932 freshman squad to offset the losses. Adrian Brodie, 1930 captain, Walter Wells, William Mahew, James Miller, Jess Haynes, Sam Traugott, Pat Brewer, and James Bowman, are the eight who have made football history at Murray State.

There will be 13 members of last year's squad that will report to the coaches this fall. Led by the red-haired flash of Mayfield, Captain Henry "Red" Evans, the Thoroughbreds will carry on and write history upon the gridiron this fall. They are: David Reed, James Heath, Zahn Wells, Brooks Ware, Paul Perdue, W. H. Foster, Harry Smith, Robert Chambers, Harold Byrd, Harry Heath, Charles Wickliffe, and Charles Todd.

Million Dollar Bridge Across Tennessee River Links Purchase to the Blue Grass

New Structure Is Near Site for the Proposed $46,000,000 Power Dam at Aurora Landing

Editor's Note: This article was prepared by the Posture Writing Class of Murray State College.

The bridge, which is being constructed by Union Bridge and Construction Company of Kansas City, Mo., since the Vincennes Steel company, is 43 miles south of Paducah on the Tennessee River. It is 15 miles northeast of the "Dark and Bloody Battle Ground." The Tennessee River is one of the few major streams in America which flow in a northerly direction.

The preliminary permit granted May 28 for a $46,000,000 power dam, if carried out by the Southern Industries and Utilities, Inc., will make possible the construction of a hydro-electric dam near this bridge.

Connecting Trigg and Marshall counties, the bridge will be a modern high truss structure 90 feet above the water and 3,348 feet in length. Seven piers, three in water and four on land, are being built. Two of the land piers are already completed.

W. H. Peterson, general manager of the Union Bridge and Construction company, stated that the substructure would be completed by September 1933.

In order to connect the bridge with highway 68, a mile and one-half of highway is being built by Trimmer and Cooke of Wickliffe, Ky. According to T. O. Turner, member of the Kentucky legislature, the bridge will probably be completed by the end of the present year.

The bond issue for the bridge is based on the assumption that the toll of the bridge will pay for it within 12 years, but the traffic of the last few years shows that it will probably be paid for within seven or eight years, stated Senator Turner, who has aided materially in securing the legislation authorizing the erection of the bridge. Maintenance of the bridge must be born by the state, the bond issue taking care of only the construction.

About 250 men are employed in constructing the bridge. Approximately 7,000 yards of concrete will be used in building the substructure. The channel piers on which the bridge will rest are about 150 feet in height.

In the construction of these piers in the river, the use of caissons is necessary for much of the under-water work. Caissons are huge boxes sunk in the river. Men called "sand-hoggers" do the excavating in the river bed. The

One state is known as "Old Kentucky" in which the sun is spilled in pools; It makes us feel we're all in luck To know her free and tolerant rules. A state of radiant maidens fair— Her horses are known as thoroughbreds; We work and play in her balmy air. With faith in God Divine o'er head. Her fields are spread with coats of blue; And feed of course the best of stock; Which graze this grass of soothing hue; That springs from a soil of limestone rock. The home of daring Daniel Boone Who traveled lonely toward the west, But tarried for the deer and coon; Kentucky in game led all the rest. The home of famous Nancy Hanks, The mother of Abraham Lincoln; 'Twas here he led in wisdom's ranks And built a sense of kind emotion. The native land of Henry Clay Who's known for his powerful eloquent speech— His name is loved and cherished today; His thoughts are topics for teachers to teach. She intervened the North and South And tried to curb a national battle; Which she could see like a famine drought, Would down her boys like helpless cattle. Until at last the pressure great Aroused to acquiesce this state of real. To Union and confederate She gave of her manhood the best. She's rich in coal and oil wells and And full of kindness for the stranger Who passes through her portals fair And needs the temptation to linger. —By Byron Peabaker

MILK SCHOOL IS HELD AT MURRAY

Mrs. Dugan Lauds Calloway County Activities

"The Milk School at Murray has been very successful and we feel that it will be a great stimulation to milk control within the counties of the first district," was the statement made by Mrs. F. C. Dugan, supervisor of the milk school which closed at Murray State College Thursday afternoon, August 13.

Mrs. Dugan stated that "The conditions in Calloway County are very fine and the state health department is well pleased with the work of the county officials."

At the morning session of the school F. C. Dugan, director of sanitary engineering, Frankfort, discussed "Toilet and Water Supply"; Dr. Ocie Carter, Paducah, discussed "Bovine Diseases"; and Glenn Young, dairy specialist, division of milk control, Frankfort, explained "The Keeping of Records."

In closing the afternoon session, certificates were given to the county officials who attended the school.

In closing Mrs. Dugan said "I wish to express our appreciation to Murray State College and its instructors for its wonderful cooperation. Without it the school could not have been the success that it was."

The next milk school will be held next week at Georgetown, Ky.

The meeting which was arranged by the American Child Health Association, United States Public Health Service, State Board of Health of Kentucky, and local health units opened at Murray State College Tuesday morning, August 11.

After registration, milk and dairy farm inspection and collection of samples were made under the direction of C. F. Christman, staff associate, clean and safe milk campaign, American Child Health Association; M. M. Miller, associate milk specialist, United States Public Health Service; and Glenn Young, dairy specialist, State Board of Health. Inspection of farms was carried on in the afternoon.

In the first open meeting of the program Tuesday evening, August 11, Dr. Ben B. Keys, member of the State Board of Health, Murray, addressed the group on "Diseases Spread by Milk." He discussed these diseases fully, quoting from the report of the Milk Committee of the White House Conference. He also discussed milk in relation to public health.

Wednesday the group continued its collection of samples, and held laboratory demonstrations. In the afternoon Mr. Miller gave a paper on "Pasteurization Plant Inspection," and Warner A. Dorsey, milk specialist of the Kentucky Board of Health gave a paper on "Cleaning and Disinfecting on Farm and Plants."

Ball Addresses Group in Evening The only address of the evening was "The Role of Milk in Nutrition" by Carlton Ball, director of the Central Dairy Council, Louisville.

Mr. Ball showed that the way in which milk was sometimes handled by the producer often discouraged the use of it. He

THE PUBLIC VOICE

Contributions to this Column Upon Topics of Interest Are Always Welcome. They Do Not Necessarily Express the Views of the Newspaper.

I have read in your column with much interest the Pique debate as to the relative merits gastronomically speaking of the right and left ham and I am awailing with keen interest an account in your paper as to how this argument was finally decided at the Pique reunion. In the meantime I am attaching a clipping from the editorial page of the Country Gentleman on this much debated subject, which seems to lend weight to the left ham side and which expresses my sentiments to a T.

Yours
G. B. Scott.

A Kansas newspaper reports that a wayside inn at Port Worth, Tex., is making specialty of "left-ham sandwiches." The proprietor of the eating establishment insists, as do a great many Southern epicures, that the left ham is sweeter, more tender, than the right ham. In a leaflet setting forth the advantages of the left-ham sandwich, he fortifies his position with logic thus:

"When a hog scratches his starboard or right side, he does a Charleston with his right foot. That develops muscles. When he scratches his left flank, he does a cantele innum against a tree or post. Therefore right ham is far more muscular and less tender. . . . One way to prove this is to watch hogs on the hoof."

The argument is impressive. But suppose we consider for a moment that enterprising creature, the razorback hog, which long ago learned how to scratch equally well with any one of its feet, or for that matter, with all four feet simultaneously.

The razorback, everyone knows, is endowed with boundless energy, enthusiasm and agility. It has to rustle for a living and in so doing becomes as fleet as Dan Patch or Twenty Grand. If no razorback is listed among the winners of the Kentucky Derby, it is only because none has ever been entered. But it goes without saying that a life of such prodigious activity does not result in sweet ham, either right or left. In texture and flavor, razorback meat closely resembles a worn-out motor tire.

Not, if a razorback, by leading too arduous a life, can become gastronomically impossible, it is only reasonable to suppose that a fat, corn-fed hog might impart the flavor of its right ham by too much scratching.

The moral of the matter is plain, though shockingly at variance with the great American creed. It is a moral which has been elevated to the height of literature by Robert Louis Stevenson in his Apology for Idlers. It is this: Sometimes there is virtue in laziness.

Obviously, what we need is a breed of hogs too indolent even to raise a foot and scratch.

mentioned several experiments made with a diet containing much milk and ice cream and the favorable result obtained.

NEW BRICK WALL ENCLOSES FIELD

Structure Is Being Built at Approximate Cost of $1000

A brick wall is being constructed across the south end of the Thoroughbred athletic field at a cost that will approximate $1000.

The wall will be seven and one-half feet high with a concrete slab along the top. There will be three entrances, one walkway, and two driveways. The entrances for the driveways will directly face each other from opposite end of the wall. Along the wall will be a private driveway connecting Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets for the use of the school only. The other entrance will be on the west end of the wall.

of the wall. The back wall of the auditorium is joined by the wall and substitutes for it for the width of the building.

According to college officials, this wall will be a benefit to the college in many ways. First it will help beautify the campus and will give a better outlook to the visiting teams. Second it will allow visiting artists to drive directly to the door on bad nights. Also the connection between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets will be a great help and it has been badly needed.

The Prison Problem

Kentucky, in common with most of her sister states and the Federal government, is finding her prison problem of growing concern.

Punishment of those who break the laws of society has always been one of the most perplexing problems of civilization and far from solving it the human race seems almost as much at sea as ever concerning it.

The theory of punishment is to cure the wrongdoer, to make it unprofitable as well as unpleasant to break the rules. On the contrary, the present system undoubtedly corrupts many petty offenders into habitual offenders and even into criminals of the worst type.

Overcrowding of prisons has resulted in several horrible riots in various parts of the United States during the past few years and the incessant cries that din in our ears are for more prisons and additional facilities to confine those incarcerated in the various state and federal penitentiaries.

Prisons are undoubtedly breeding places for criminals. Many a petty offender, who is not at heart a criminal, is made one through association with hardened criminals during confinement.

On the other hand, many habits and constitutional criminals are too often let off with too light sentences. Confined for a few years where they can nurse their hatred against the entire human race until, when released, they are in the right attitude for further and more outrageous depredations against their kind.

It seems to us that a great deal of prison crowding could be relieved without any sacrifice of protection by releasing on probation and under suspended sentences, first offenders on minor felony charges. A person with a suspended sentence over his head is very likely to behave himself. To say the least, he has a better opportunity of becoming a law-abiding citizen than if lodged in prison and subjected to the contaminating influence of hardened criminals throughout the length of his term.

In our judgment, a great portion of the horrible crimes of America are due to the lack of punishment commensurate with the crime, for the perpetrators of crime are one of the quirk of human nature to want a minor offender severely punished and recoil from the death penalty for a monster who has committed a crime too horrible to relate. Maudlin sentiment is indirectly but none the less effectively causing many innocent persons to become victims of killers.

For example, the state of Michigan, which has abolished the death penalty, is unable to give more than a life sentence to the notorious killer, Fred Burke, who had proved beyond doubt that he was no more entitled to mercy or life than a mad dog. Just the past week, two white men and a negro slave four innocent young people for no other reason in the world than stark brutality. Yet the Michigan law can do more than five times the sentences where they may escape or be paroled again to become a terrible menace to life and security.

The point is beyond debate, there simply are, some beings in human form so depraved and dangerous that there is no choice other than to exterminate them for the protection of society.

Summarizing the condition, it seems that we Americans are doing too little to the big crook and too much to the little crook. We have not yet taken a logical viewpoint toward crime and its prevention. Until we recognize and sanely act upon all the factors in the situation, it is apparent that we cannot expect much improvement.

However, one grocer, who is a member of the city council, takes the position that the competition of a city market would be no greater than that of selling at the door of homes, that it is a natural business affair for farmers to sell their fruits and vegetables directly to the housewife.

There is a wide discrepancy in prices asked for the same product by different farmers, due principally, it is believed, to a lack of knowledge of what is the right price. The other morning in Murray, a lad was asking fifteen cents each for cantaloupes. Another was offering cantaloupes at fifteen cents a dozen.

A city market would have the advantage of stabilizing prices on similar products, saving farmers and their wives the trouble of making house to house canvases and avoiding the disturbance of citizens early in the morning with solicitations for products they do not want. Often housewives buy their groceries for the day and are not exactly as they want it for fear another seller may not call that morning. The producers make many fruitless calls for they do not know principally concerned in the market for their particular offerings.

If a city market should be established, people of the city would not be compelled to use house-to-house "solicitations" if they pleased. Under no circumstances will those who sell fruits and vegetables produced by themselves be compelled to pay a privilege tax or obtain any license, so the Ledger & Times understands.

Whether a city market is practical or feasible, we do not undertake to say. However, there is some agitation for it and it remains to be seen whether the demand will be sufficient to establish a market on trial.

It is probable that a good location downtown could be secured at a nominal cost. The matter is up to those principally concerned, house-to-house solicitors for fruit and vegetable sales, their customers (the citizens of Murray) and the equitable interests of the grocers of Murray, who pay privilege taxes and other costs to do business in this city.

Child-Driving

Automobile driving by children under 16 years of age has become so common that little or nothing is thought of it and few, if any, outside the law, know that it is against Kentucky state law for a child under sixteen years of age to operate a motor vehicle.

It is entirely true that there are many children under this age who are more competent to operate a car than many of their elders. However, the fact remains true that an inexperienced child would not be as dependable in an emergency as an adult, though there are exceptions to this statement, too.

Children who drive are not responsible in case of an accident but their parents are and when a child is involved in an automobile wreck as a driver the parent has a hard case to begin with because the law has been violated.

Fortunately, there have been no serious accidents when a child under the age limit was driving that we can recall. We do not know of any individual who has complained of driving by children. We simply remind our readers of the law in the matter.

Some Agitation Here for City Market

There has been some suggestion made in Murray for a city market where farmers may sell fruits and vegetables. Some inquiry from farmers concerning a city market has been made to city officials, it is understood.

During the past week, there have been large numbers of farmers selling their products at the doors of Murray homes and a limited few citizens have complained of the disturbance.

Some grocers may oppose a city market on the grounds that it would be in competition with their business by non-tax-paying sellers.

Mack, too, in his tolerably old age, is apparently climbing the starway to high Olympus and, like Simon Bolivar, has unwittingly struck a blow for human liberty. Anyway, he has about laughed out of court a dirty deal that meant the distating upon this state of nearly three-quarters of a million of interest-bearing warrants, as nobody now considers the matter seriously, and we are well assured that the next legislature will repudiate the whole business.

JUST JOTS

By Joe

Mr. Henry L. Doherty, the Utilities magnate, has purchased an interest in a Kansas City paper as an instrument for fighting a race battle. We wonder if Mr. Doherty ever heard of the newspaper experiences of one James B. Brown, of Louisville, Ky.

Frankly, we are astonished at the cynicism of our good friend Keen Johnson who avers in his column in the Richmond Register, that he understands the author of "Happy Married Life" is using proceeds from his book to pay alimony.

At least some merchants are optimistic that times are going to be better. They are advertising full handbags.

Stove merchants are not offering "free coal" to encourage early buying of heaters. But, so early that Beelzebub won't provide with the same commodity throughout the hereafter.

President Hoover was 57 last week and we have no doubt that he felt his age. And, we all feel his era.

Frankly, suggested by an E-town News paragraph. When one speaks of remote control, he should make it clear whether he means radio or children.

Maybe business could get started a little better if it had a set of non-skid tires.

The Richmond Register is worrying that it has been 17 years since the World War and it hasn't been found out who won it. Apparently, Mr. Johnson has not run across any Martiens within the past ten years.

The Murray Collegians dropped a five-to-one decision to the Camden Vols at Camden last Thursday. Loose play by the Collegians in the field cost Joe Haynes a well-pitched, six-hit game.

The Collegians are booked for a game at Paris this afternoon with the Apex Oil team and will return to Paducah Sunday for a return engagement with the Paducah Blue Sox, whom they defeated, 10-7, Sunday, August 9.

CARRIERS TO MEET AT GOLDEN POND

Large Crowd Expected to Convene On Seventh of September.

The rural carriers of the First District are to hold their annual meeting at Golden Pond, Trigg county, on Labor Day, which comes on Monday, September 7th. Steve A. Austin, who is the district president, made the announcement last Friday at his home in Mayfield.

Mr. Austin departed early last Monday morning for Los Angeles, to attend the National Rural Letter Carriers Association as one of Kentucky's delegates, but before leaving he issued an appeal to the carriers of the thirteen counties of the First District urging them to attend this meeting at Golden Pond with their families.

The district meeting held on Labor Day of last year was attended by two hundred and fifty people, and it is planned to make the attendance this year even larger.

Local committees among Trigg county carriers will look after details for the Golden Pond meeting, and everything possible is to be done to make the Trigg county gathering the most outstanding and most successful yet held during the existence of the First District Association.

THE SHAKERTOWN BLUES

By John M. Meloon

(Continued from Page One) you that a whole note is held for four beats. Rainey was good. He held it for thirty-five beats. I desponded. A guest called the "Free Silver Blues." When we serenaded the Bank of Murray, Rainey was emotionally and otherwise touched. That was all he ever got out of it—the Blues.

But I digress. Man, you should have seen us, and heard us, as we swung into Main Street playing the "Washington Post!"

(I claim that we played it much better than the gentleman who now holds the said post, and brags about it over the radio.)

Even so, the merchants of our town talked about getting out an injunction. We had six alphabets, so-called because the merchants hired a man to slip them out and hide them whenever there was evidence that we were about to cut loose. Every time we played "Dixie" the old Confederates of Calloway sprang to arms to attack the Yankees, but the band.

All right, then. The foregoing would tend to show that I am a musician, believe it or not. It is not, I cite the fact that I wrote the Evening's Overture and Grand Introductory for the Kicksapoo Indian Medical Show, a trifling I forgot how long. I am trying to forget. This decomposition of mine for that aggregation is what made the Red man red.

(It also caused the manager to be arrested for putting too much alcohol or grape-juice in the liver tonic. Mrs. Willebrandt got him out of it.) Therefore, I hope I have established my claim that I am a musician. So note it be. Here is my suggestion for a state song. Take it or leave it, or add to it, as the exigencies of the occasion may demand, and it you want to, head it, "The Shakertown Blues" and set it to the tune of "A Measly Shame." (Chord of D, professor.) "My bird is dead," said Nancy day.

"My bird is dead," said Nancy day. It died so sudden, oh, dad gum!

Its singing ceased at early dawn, As the I. C. R. R. came rushing on.

A song so sad—now I hum it, "I do not like this Steno Brummitt."

The other Bird is still on hand, It sits and preens and views the land.

Contracts ready by Mrs. Wellman. Politics—ain't it hell, man?

"I'll say so, ganny. Her valuation of sandy land, Is positively uncanny!"

She came and went with Conn's advice. With one quick throw of loaded dice.

She copped a farm for old Kentucky. Taxpayers feel so powerful lucky.

Flem Sampson is a famous man. O'er the State I drum it.

But he would 'a' been an also ran. Bur for dear Steno Brummitt.

CHORUS: Ain't it a shame, a measly shame To take our dough in this Conn game?

Do not despair, but lift and grin. I see Clem Coleman coming in; Else we'd 'a' been in debt—

Clear over our chin. JOHN M. MELOAN, Frankfort, Ky.

An Appreciation of Dr. Charles Otis Gingles

Charles Otis Gingles began his medical career in Calloway county, Kentucky, where he first saw the light of day June 1, 1874.

He was the oldest child of Dr. J. T. and Alice Watkins Gingles.

He began his spiritual life in Kirksey, where under the influence of a Methodist minister, he was guided in the right way.

He was converted in his boyhood and united with the Presbyterian church, retaining his membership with that church until the end.

He began his professional life in Kirksey, where he located after receiving his degree of Doctor of Medicine from the University of Louisville. His father had a large practice, reaching over the northwest part of Calloway and into Marshall and Graves counties.

Dr. Otis inherited a good practice, and in addition he built up a heavy practice of his own. He was earnest, honest, conscientious, capable and a perfect gentleman.

He brought to his profession, not only a well-trained mind and skillful hands, but a pleasing personality, which was a great asset to his practice.

He was more than a physician to them; he was guide, counselor, friend. More than once he broke under the strain of the burden he bore, and had to go away for rest and recuperation, but when he returned it was only to take up the burden again, for those to whom he ministered were loath to let him go.

Leaving Murray he located in Carman, Oklahoma, regaining, in a measure, his health he engaged actively in his profession until his last illness.

In his lodge he was an honored and useful member, being one of the past Masters of the Masonic Lodge of Murray.

Surviving him are his wife, his four children, one step-daughter, Miss Dixie Gingles, and his sisters, Mrs. Ole Morris and Mrs. Maude Dulaney of Murray, and Mrs. Mabel Stark, of Kirksey; his brothers, Guy, of Fulton, Hunter, of Harbourside, Hugh, of Kirksey, and Fred, of Austin, Texas.

"Only a step round the turn, round the bend, On into happiness, world without end.

They go, Our Beloved, just through the gate, There in the sunlight to smile and to wait.

Doing the things they loved so to do— Seeking new treasures, and beauties anew, Finding old friends and their welcoming smile.

Working and playing and resting awhile. Grieve not, lest our grieving should sadden them there, And shadow their kingdom that must be so fair.

Still may we serve them, if they be waiting for us, Spies in return for their love round the bend."

Mrs. E. P. Phillips.

Her family was then convinced she could dance very well and she danced in Paris, Nice, London and Berlin before coming to America at the instigation of a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive, who had had tests made in Europe. In this country she has played in several pictures including "Forward March," "Call of the Flesh," "Toto," and "Way of a Sailor." Learn what a difference six cylinders make Step out of any other low-priced car into a Chevrolet, and learn the difference six cylinders make.

"Idle" the engine—the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. It's actually built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only one of many six-cylinder advantages. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire you out. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And a six is much easier to handle!

If you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running so smoothly, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

Cousin Bud Cochran, who lives near Murray now, was raised up in Graves county. He thinks (?) Mayfield is all of it. But, sir, Murray is a far ahead of Mayfield as the East is from the West. "Eagle"

When I became interested in the leader of a movement to sell tobacco co-operatively more than twenty-five years ago, I shared with many others the view that the financial, sales and legal departments of a co-operative required a higher order of knowledge and ability than that necessary to the promotion and maintenance of the organization department.

In fact, I thought that with the perfecting of financial, sales and legal departments, the matter of promoting and maintaining the organization department would be easy.

After a few years of arduous work and diligent study, my views on this particular subject were entirely reversed, and for many years I have been thoroughly aware that to promote, and maintain the organization department is the most difficult, requiring deeper and more diversified thought and planning, after which financing, sales and conservative prices and the legal end of it would be very greatly simplified.

If Dr. Brehm, as in control of the extension department of the University of Tennessee, and as in a manner associated with the Federal Farm Board, has decided that with the luke warm reception of his program and contract at the several meetings in a number of counties Saturday, the undertaking of a co-operative might as well be abandoned, I would say it is not only high time, but the opportune time for the intelligent tobacco growers and forward-looking citizens generally to get very busy in a determined purpose to work to fruition a program and contract that will appeal to the best thought of the country as safe, fair and workable, and that might reasonably be expected to receive the sanction of the Federal Farm Board.

I have ascertained to my own satisfaction that a co-operative can be financed entirely independent of the Federal Farm Board, of which we could avail if it seemed impossible to reach an accord with such board.

I would, however, prefer to reach an accord with the Federal Farm Board and to operate under its sponsorship if the safety and fairness of the undertaking is reasonably safe-guarded in a manner the possibility of which I have not had the slightest doubt.

I regard it an absolute loss of valuable time to be holding meetings all over the dark tobacco district, and as extending through many months, even years, for the so-called purpose of ascertaining what the tobacco grower wants.

What I have gotten out of such meetings, however well they may have been intended, and I cast no aspersions whatever upon those who propounded them, has been to get the tobacco grower committed to something he positively does not want, and that is a unilateral contract, a contract by which he is required to pledge his entire productive resources without a reciprocal obligation as to the limit of expense, or what per cent of its market value he can depend upon by the co-operative on delivery of his product.

To accept the yernal statement of the Federal Farm Board as "sacrosanct," an institution the members of which are susceptible to human limitations, and as a whole to terrific business upheavals which might also be jeopardized by subtle but withering political influences, is simply such unsafe business that I regard it unfair to attempt to plunge the tobacco grower, into it without reciprocal obligations on the part of the co-operative that are tantamount to reasonable insurance for the safety of the undertaking. This I know to be easily possible.

This subject of co-operative tobacco marketing has so many ramifications and very complicated difficulties, that I do not believe it would ever be possible to get intelligent detailed opinions from tobacco growers as to what they want at mass meetings.

As I view the matter the purpose of the leaders should be to get up a program and a contract which is safe and fair to all parties concerned, and in which the coordination of the several departments is as thorough as human ingenuity can devise, to print and to make public that tobacco growers may, discuss among themselves, consult their lawyers, bankers and merchants about; and then submit same at mass meetings either for acceptance, or rejection, as a preliminary to a campaign for membership.

If a program and contract, and management is indicated to them which they have confidence in, I feel assured the matter of organization will immediately be given great, and very pleasing impetus.

If not, those of us who have given the best thought of which we are capable to the subject, in the best interest of our own industry, fellow-growers, local business, and our country, will have the satisfaction of feeling that we have done our duty.

I, by no means, believe that the greatest possibilities for a co-operative sales organization have been exhausted, but on the contrary do not believe that the greatest possibilities have been approached.

A headline on the market page of the Courier Journal Saturday said:

"The egg market is unsettled. Even so, it is rotten!"

I see some mention of "Athlete's foot" in the newspaper, and advertisements of cures for the said same. Now Athlete's foot is not "Athlete's foot" as you might suspect. It is nothing more nor less than toe-jam. Athletes should wash their feet now and then.

However, it is a formidable aggregation of athletes. "Ty" Holland, the coach at the City Building, will soon begin to work his feet. It looks like Murray will have three high school football teams going this fall. One at the Training School, one at the City School building, and one at the Colored High School.

Hazel Baseball Club Sponsors Show This Week

The ball club at Hazel is presenting J. C. Amusement Company on the regular show grounds, all this week. The riding device the Merry-go-round and Chair-plane seem to be the most popular. The big slide show, the evening created a sensation by buying a man alive, in the regulation six foot square where he undertakes to remain for 72 hours without food and water. Arco, the Australian wizard of electricity, presenting his chair of death, will be remembered long after the show has departed, demonstrating what takes place when a man is actually put to death.

The largest reptile ever seen in the section. The presence of the show is about the average carried by carnival companies.

As no gambling devices are carried in this organization, the approval of the public and the baseball club looks forward to a profitable week and assures you will be a home and entertained in Hazel this week. Advt.
